Pioneering Science - The History of Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory
S–Tuesday, September 24 • 7:00-8:30pm
For well over a century, the research faculty at Long Island’s Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory (CSHL) have contributed some of the most fundamental discoveries in molecular biology, genetics and neuroscience. Nobel Prize-winning scientists including Alfred D. Hershey, Barbara McClintock, Richard J. Roberts and Carol Greider, among others, conducted their groundbreaking work at the CSHL facility. And, through the years, other CSHL researchers have made major advancements in numerous fields of scientific research, many of which have helped humanity live better and longer. The CSHL Archives preserves the original research and documents created by these pioneering scientists. Discover the fascinating history of CSHL and the scientists who’ve worked there, as Ludmila (Mila) Pollock, MLS, Executive Director of the CSHL Library and Archives, describes how the Laboratory transformed from a summertime-only marine biology-focused lab in 1890 to its current status as one of the most influential research centers in the world.

The Land of Moses - Robert Moses and Modern Long Island
S–Tuesday, October 22 • 7:00-8:30pm
Prolific. Brash. Strategically brilliant. One of the most controversial figures in Long Island history. Builder Robert Moses (1888-1981) helped determine the environments in which we continue to live. More than any other 20th century figure, Moses redefined transportation infrastructure and the recreational and cultural possibilities for generations of Long Islanders. From the creation of his Long Island State Parks Commission blueprint in 1924, to his late career disappointments that included the proposed (but never built) Rye-Oyster Bay Bridge in 1973, the significance of Moses’s life continues to be debated, nearly 40 years after his death. Join Joshua Ruff, Chief Curator of the Long Island Museum, as he discusses Moses’s complex signature on bridges, parks and highways and measures his legacy as an extraordinary builder and planner.

Long Island Innovators and Inventors
Much of Long Island’s past was driven and shaped by the innovative and inventive ideas of those who lived and worked here. To illustrate this, the Long Island Room has assembled a collection of materials that represent some of the most significant achievements attained through the ingenuity and imagination of these remarkable Long Islanders. This exhibit will be on view through December 2019. A special thanks to the Tesla Science Center at Wardenclyffe for lending materials to this exhibit.
